

Final Outcomes Part 1

Noah Price-Bateman's Zine

After the many prototypes, experiments and different versions of the zines, the time had come to begin making the final version of each version of the zine.

This involved:

Finalising the layout of all the text and imagery on the PDF.

Choosing what layout the zine on Figma would use.

Deciding which layout would work best for the physical zine

After careful consideration and planning, one by one each version was finished. Thanks to the many different iterations before, it did not take long to finalise everything.

The rest of these two PDFs will showcase each finished version of the zine.

The PDF Zine/The Finished Zine

Using the advice of many people around me, the placement of everything in the zine was finalised and the readability of all the text was fixed. This resulted in a zine I am incredibly proud of.

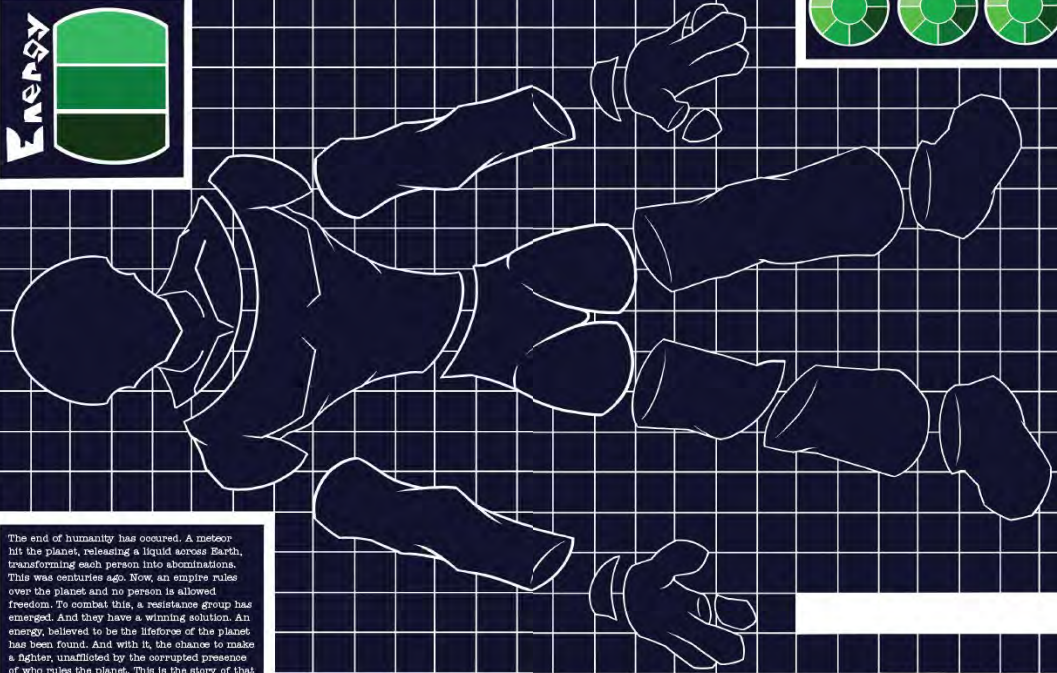

Stellar Variable

Created by Noah Price-Batman

The end of humanity has occurred. A meteor hit the planet, releasing a liquid across Earth, transforming each person into abominations. This was centuries ago. Now, an empire rules over the planet and no person is allowed freedom. To combat this, a resistance group has emerged. And they have a winning solution. An energy, believed to be the lifeforce of the planet has been found. And with it, the chance to make a fighter, unaffiliated by the corrupted presence of who rules the planet. This is the story of that resistance fighter.

Vikter

Vikter

Brought back from the dead, Vikter was your average person who passed away before the apocalypse claimed the world.

The body of Vikter was an experiment to make a body, not infected by Malvus's powers, but instead empowered by the planet. Now he is the only shot at saving the Earth from an eternal dictatorship.

002A32

C4A29E

EBA6A9

FFC6AC

F40076

MALVUS

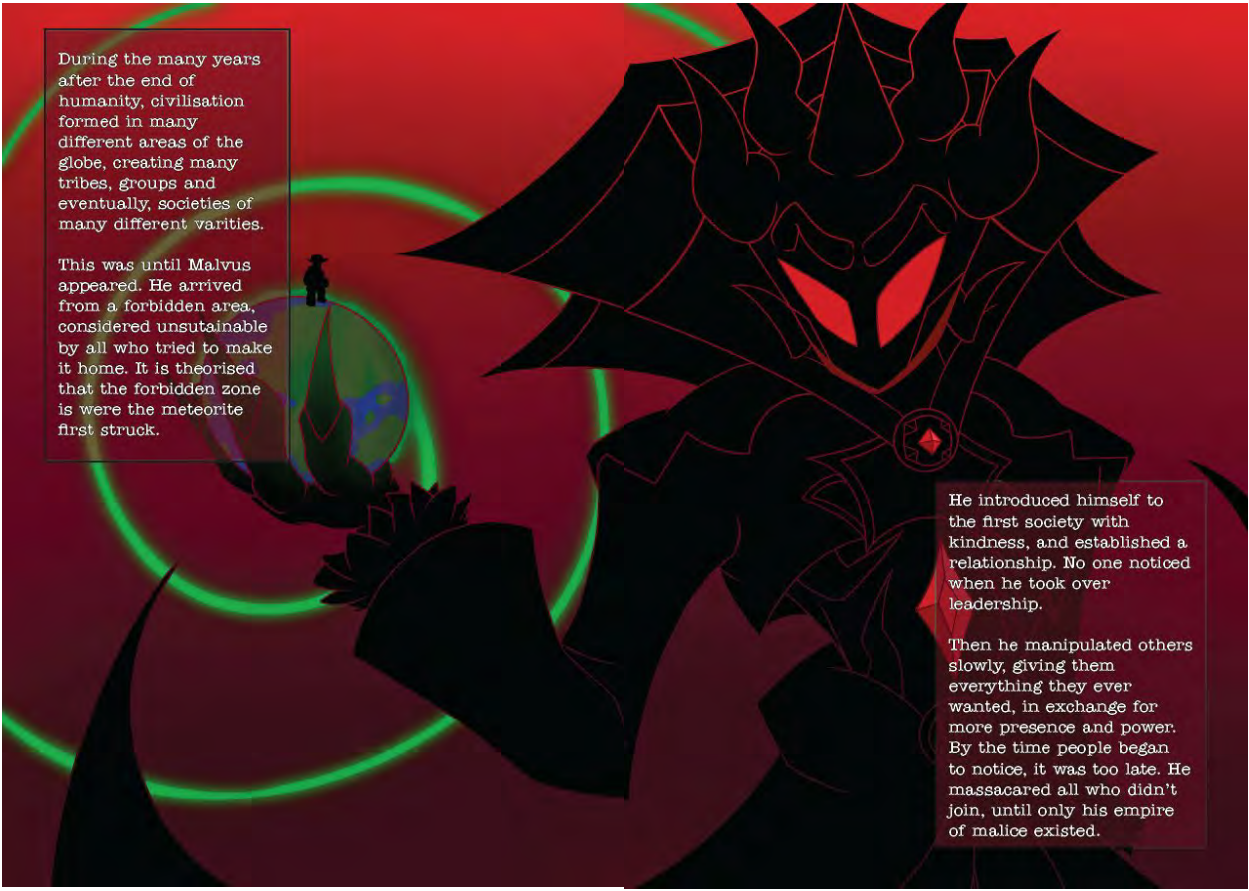

Malvus

The ruler of the post apocalypse. He rules with an iron fist, feigning a rule of peace. With his powers, he is able to alter the very nature of the planet, along with the DNA of anyone who dares oppose him.

No one knows where he came from or from where his power originated, but everyone knows not to challenge it, lest they invoke his attention. His goal is to become a god, the only role befitting his ego.

During the many years after the end of humanity, civilisation formed in many different areas of the globe, creating many tribes, groups and eventually, societies of many different varieties.

This was until Malvus appeared. He arrived from a forbidden area, considered unsuitable by all who tried to make it home. It is theorised that the forbidden zone is where the meteorite first struck.

He introduced himself to the first society with kindness, and established a relationship. No one noticed when he took over leadership.

Then he manipulated others slowly, giving them everything they ever wanted, in exchange for more presence and power. By the time people began to notice, it was too late. He massacred all who didn't join, until only his empire of malice existed.

Plimble

Plimble

Plimble was originally two people, a boy and a girl. They had been taken by Suvlam, Malvus's second in command, for experimentation.

They were specifically used in an experiment to create the ultimate lifeform, resulting in both of their bodies being fused into one, along with a mysterious ooze. Now, they seek revenge against Suvlam, joining the resistance against Malvus.

I just want to be me

SUVLAM

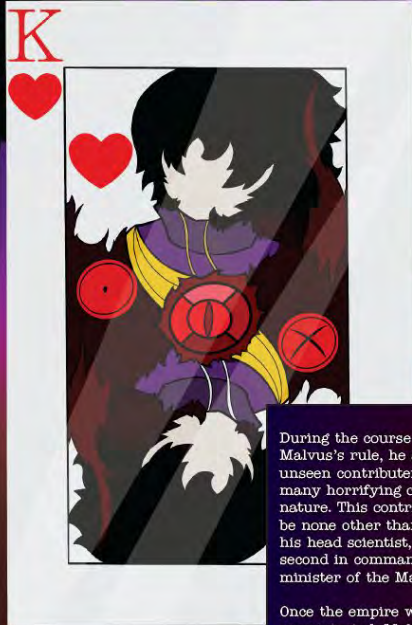

Suvlam

Suvlam, Malvus's second in command, along with the leading scientist. Suvlam is a master robotocist. Despite this, Malvus forced him into a biological field, specifically to create the ultimate lifeform.

Over the years, he has created a mysterious ooze, creating creatures even beyond the apocalypse, going as far as to even infect his own body with it.

During the course of Malvus's rule, he always had an unseen contributor, working on many horrifying crimes against nature. This contributor would be none other than Suvlam, his head scientist, who became second in command and grand minister of the Malvus Empire.

Once the empire was uncontested, Malvus gave a simple mission to his trusted comrade. One that would surpass every other objective by far, and push Suvlam far beyond what he thought capable.

Create the Ultimate Lifeform.

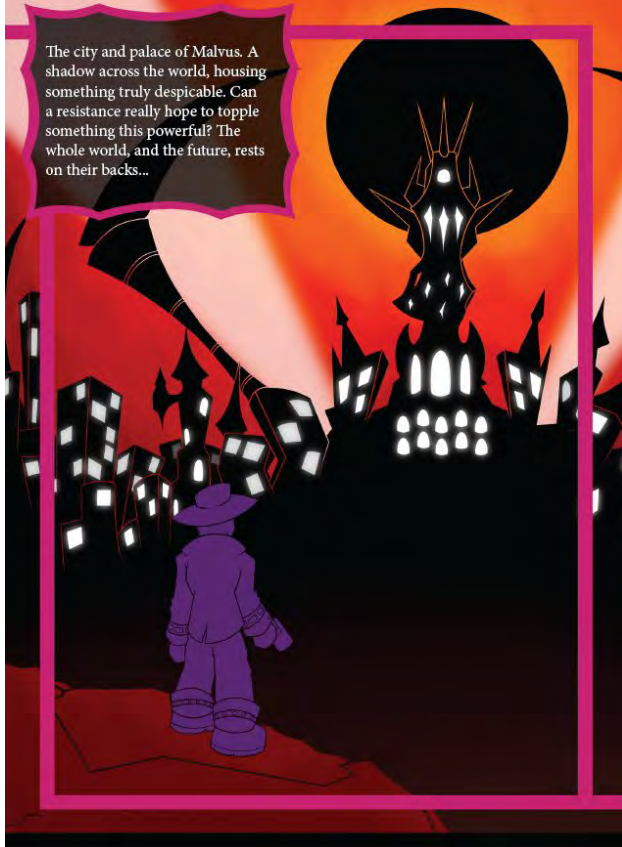

The process of making the Ultimate Lifeform was a horrific one. Suvlam started by creating a substance similar in nature to what changed everyone on the planet. However it was more symbiotic in nature.

After 8999 experiments, all performed on people, Suvlam landed on a young boy and girl. Using his machinery, he was able to fuse the two together with the substance, fusing all 3 and creating Plimble. But before he could showcase them to Malvus, Plimble escaped his laboratory. Malvus was not impressed. Now, Suvlam had a new task:

Retrieve the Ultimate Lifeform, at all costs.

The city and palace of Malvus. A shadow across the world, housing something truly despicable. Can a resistance really hope to topple something this powerful? The whole world, and the future, rests on their backs...

In every land...

Every city...

Every Continent...

And Watching every person.

Despite the power they fight against, the resistance plan on taking down this empire. If they do not, then the fate of the world and beyond is doomed to stay in the hands of a malevolent dictator.

Even if they stand alone against the world, they will continue onwards.

Someone has to fight for freedom.
Someone has to fight for the future.

Maybe once the fires have died down, and freedom has been restored, a new civilization can be made, and peace can be attained.

But a question remains...
What happened to the meteor?
And was it merely a coincidence that it landed on Earth?

Or was there a grander force at play?

A resistance determined to bring freedom back to the people.

An empire ruling over the planet, made to satisfy the ego of its ruler.

To deny the empire is a death sentence. But freedom and peace must be fought for.

The future of a new species is at stake, and perhaps the fate of the universe, relies on these brave few.

Made by Noah Price-Bateman

The Digital Zine

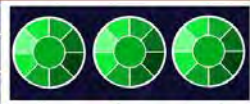

From the PDF layout, a digital version of the zine was made on Figma. After some experimentation, assets were made and the digital version was finished. It was kept to PC only.

Stellar Variable

Created by Noah Price-Bateman

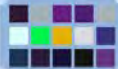

The end of humanity has occurred. A meteor hit the planet, releasing a liquid across Mars, transforming each person into abominations. This was centuries ago. Now, an empire rules over the planet and no person is allowed freedom. To combat this, a resistance group has emerged. And they have a winning solution. An energy, believed to be the lifeforce of the planet has been found. And with it, the chance to make a fighter, unarmored by the corrupted presence of who rules the planet. This is the story of that resistance fighter.

Vikter

Vikter

Brought back from the dead, Vikter was your average person who passed away before the apocalypse claimed the world.

The body of Vikter was an experiment to make a body, not infected by Malvus's powers, but instead empowered by the planet. Now he is the only shot at saving the Earth from an eternal dictatorship.

002A32

C4A29E

EBA6A9

FFC6AC

F40076

MALVUS

Malvus

The ruler of the post-apocalypse. He rules with an iron fist, feigning a rule of peace. With his powers, he is able to alter the very nature of the planet, along with the DNA of anyone who dares oppose him.

No one knows where he came from or from where his power originated, but everyone knows not to challenge it, lest they invoke his attention. His goal is to become a god, the only role befitting his ego.

During the many years after the end of humanity, civilisation formed in many different areas of the globe, creating many tribes, groups and eventually, societies of many different varieties.

This was until Malvus appeared. He arrived from a forbidden area, considered unsustainable by all who tried to make it home. It is theorised that the forbidden zone is where the meteorite first struck.

He introduced himself to the first society with kindness, and established a relationship. No one noticed when he took over leadership.

Then he manipulated others slowly, giving them everything they ever wanted, in exchange for more presence and power. By the time people began to notice, it was too late. He massacred all who didn't join, until only his empire of malice existed.

Plimble

Plimble

Plimble was originally two people, a boy and a girl. They had been taken by Suviam. Malvus's superior in command, for experimentation.

They were specifically used in an experiment to create the ultimate weapon, resulting in both of their bodies being fused into one, along with a mysterious ooze. Now, they seek revenge against Suviam, joining the resistance against Malvus.

I just want to be me

SUVLAM

Suvlam

Suvlam, Malvus's second in command, along with the leading scientist. Suvlam is a master robotocist. Despite this, Malvus forced him into a biological field, specifically to create the ultimate lifeform.

Over the years, he has created a mysterious one, creating creatures even beyond the apocalypse, going as far as to even infect his own body with it.

During the course of Malvus's rule, he always had an unseen contributor working on many horrifying crimes against nature. This contributor would be none other than Suvlam, his head scientist, who became second in command and grand minister of the Malvus Empire.

Once the empire was uncontested, Malvus gave a simple mission to his trusted comrade. One that would surpass every other objective by far, and push Suvlam far beyond what he thought capable.

Create the Ultimate Liform.

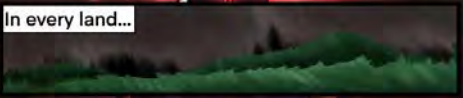

The process of making the Ultimate Liform was a horrific one. Suvlam started by creating a substance similar in nature to what changed everyone on the planet. However it was more symbiotic in nature.

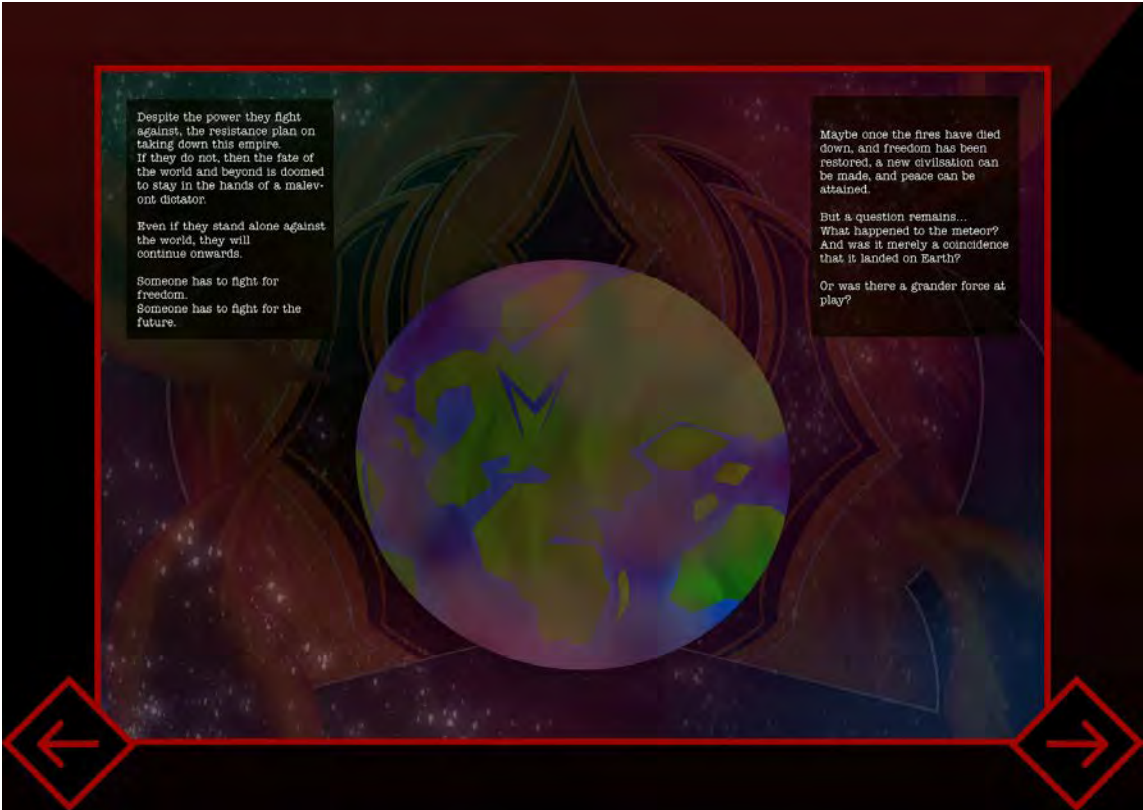

After 8999 experiments, all performed on people, Suvlam landed on a young boy and girl. Using his machinery, he was able to fuse the two together with the substance, fusing all 3 and creating Flimble. But before he could showcase them to Malvus, Flimble escaped his laboratory. Malvus was not impressed. Now, Suvlam had a new task.

Retrieve the Ultimate Liform, at all costs.

The city and palace of Malvus. A shadow across the world, housing something truly despicable. Can a resistance really hope to topple something this powerful? The whole world, and the future, rests on their backs...

The image features a central view of Earth from space, showing continents in green and blue against a dark purple and blue background. The Earth is framed by a red border. At the bottom corners of this border are red diamond-shaped arrows pointing left and right. Two large black circles are positioned on the left and right sides of the page, partially overlapping the red border.

Despite the power they fight against, the resistance plan on taking down this empire.

If they do not, then the fate of the world and beyond is doomed to stay in the hands of a malevo-lent dictator.

Even if they stand alone against the world, they will continue onwards.

Someone has to fight for freedom.
Someone has to fight for the future.

Maybe once the fires have died down, and freedom has been restored, a new civilisation can be made, and peace can be attained.

But a question remains...
What happened to the meteor?
And was it merely a coincidence
that it landed on Earth?

Or was there a grander force at play?

A reistance determined to bring freedom back to the people.

An empire ruling over the planet, made to satisfy the ego of its ruler.

To deny the empire is a death sentence. But freedom and peace must be fought for.

The future of a new species is at stake, and perhaps the fate of the universe, relies on these brave few.

Made by Noah Price-Bateman